

An exclusive business forum with a world statesman

His Holiness the Dalai Lama is a world statesman of considerable renown and influence. Respected worldwide as an advocate for peace and as a wise counsel, the Dalai Lama has a unique perspective on the challenges faced by business leaders in today's highly competitive environment.

The Dalai Lama will touch on the broad issues of corporate life – the role of ethics in business and the social and environmental responsibility of business – as well as advice on finding meaning and fulfillment in work for yourself and your employees.

Of course, the Dalai Lama makes no claim to be a businessman – indeed, he professes to be just a 'simple Buddhist monk'. However, his practical advice on living and working with the stress of 21st century life is highly sought after and universal. In this rare appearance in Australia, business leaders will be presented with an exclusive forum to listen to and question the Dalai Lama on their unique concerns.
